Foreword

That the happiest days we have thus far known, that friendships formed, and achievements won, may never be forgotten is our highest aim in publishing this book.

Dedication

To Boone County—yesterday a wilderness, today a garden of beauty and prosperity, our home and the birthplace of our earliest inspirations—we dedicate this book.

SENIOR CLASS OF 1927.

Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow

Three of us wandering in the trails of today,
Three of us in hand just to guide the narrow way.

Winds of time are blowing and now that we are young,
Each should guide the other from temptation and the wrong.

Of us three, Yesterday was the steering hand,
With his deeds and happiness tells us where we stand,
And if Yesterday should fail to play his willing part,
Today and Tomorrow would never make a start.

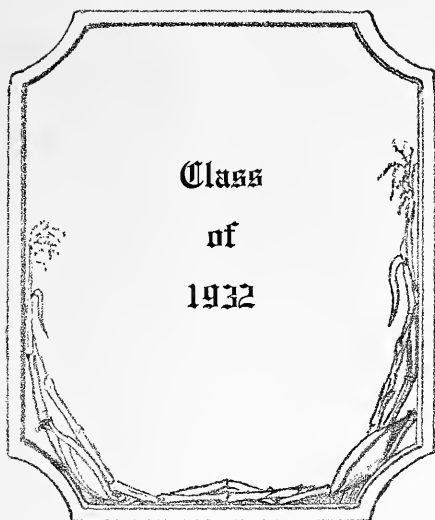

Today, another future friend adventures to embark,
With Yesterday to guide him through this great world full of dark.
Should it be for them to sail to the future task,
Or shall it be a failure and a drudgery to the last?

Future and Tomorrow protect us as best you can,
By making Past and Present serve us like a man,
Never fail to ask those who have stood the test
What thing within the future is sure to be the best.

VERNON SHIPLEY.

Debate Team

The 1927 Debate Team, composed of eight boys, and coached by Mr. Myers, completed a very satisfactory year's work with the annual triangular debate with Frankfort and Crawfordsville. Although Frankfort won the debate, Lebanon received as many decisions of the judges as the winning teams did. The negative team lost a two to one decision to Frankfort, while the affirmative team won from Crawfordsville by a unanimous decision.

The Sunshine Society was organized this year into three committees, the Black and Gold, Sunshine in the School, and Sunshine in the Community. At Thanksgiving contributions of food from the students filled fifteen baskets which were distributed among needy families. At the first of the year, "The Trysting Place" and "The Florist's Shop," two one-act plays, were given which provided money for the annual scholarship fund. The State Sunshine Convention was held at Huntington, April 22 and 23. Mary Rosalind Parr and Louise Adney attended the convention from the Lebanon chapter.

President	ROBERT DUFF
Vice-President	RICHARD ADNEY
Secretary	WILLIAM J. STEWART
Treasurer	HARRY DEAN
Sponsors ...	MR. TATLOCK, MR. CHRISTIAN, MR. MYERS

The Senior Hi-Y Club is composed of leading boys from the Sophomore, Junior and Senior classes elected by the organization twice each year. The local club is a member of the National Association of Hi-Y Clubs, whose purpose is "To create, maintain and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character."

The outstanding activities of the club this year have been the holding of a County Boys Conference, recruiting a Boone County delegation of boys to the State Older Boys' Conference, sponsoring a mid-winter conference in the school with Dr. W. P. Dearing as leader, distributing Hi-Y blotters to everyone in school, giving a circus on April 19th and promoting clean speech, clean sports, clean living and clean scholarship throughout the school.

President	ROY SHAW
Vice-President	CORINNE HARRISON
Secretary	LOUISE ADNEY
Treasurer	WILLIAM J. STEWART

The National Honor Society was organized in Lebanon in 1923. It receives as members fifteen per cent of each Senior class who have excelled in service, scholarship, character and leadership during their high school course. Ten per cent were elected and initiated during the first semester of this year. These were Ruth Brookshire, Louise Adney, William Stewart, Edgar Schaid, Mildred Alice Sweeney, Corinne Harrison, William Darnall, and Roy Shaw. The remaining five per cent elected in the second semester were Martha Kern, Margaret Moore, John Hornaday and Isabelle Crostreet.

Athletic Association

The Athletic Association is composed of all students and teachers who pay a fee of twenty-five cents or buy a season ticket to athletic contests. The purpose is the promotion of the athletic program of the school. The Association acts under a Constitution and the Athletic Board of Control appearing above acts on all matters pertaining to athletics. Letters and numerals are awarded by this board and all important expenditures must receive its approval.

Our Chiefs

PAUL CHURCH	Head Coach
VORIS DEMAREE	Faculty Manager
EVALYN GIFFIN	Girls' Coach
LEWIS PICKETT	Assistant Coach
EDGAR SCHAID	Captain, Football and Basketball
WILLIAM J. STEWART	Captain, Basketball

In the hands of this group has been entrusted the management of our athletic program this year and to them is due credit for the successes we have enjoyed. Theirs it has been to supply the initiative and direction of athletics and they did it well. Schaid and Stewart alternated as basketball captain, they being the only Basketball letter men at the beginning of the season.

Cheer Leaders

MARION WOOLEY BOB WHITE

These are the boys who kept up the fight on the sidelines as the players fought it out on gridiron and court. Theirs was not an easy task but had we all done as well as these two there would never have been any reason for complaining that the rooters failed to do their part.

Football

The season of 1926 was opened with only one player who had ever started a game, and only five or six more who had even played. Nevertheless, Coach Church soon dispelled any doubts as to his ability as a director of athletic teams. The schedule drawn up consisted of games with some of the strongest teams in the state, but in spite of this fact, the green team turned in some very creditable games, and the new players were beginning to find themselves when an epidemic of unfortunate injuries hit the squad and practically ruined any chances they had of winning at least two of the games.

Although the record of two games won, two tied, and four lost, is only fairly good, it does not give a just indication of the strength of the teams. Like nearly all inexperienced squads, the Lebanon team played an in and out season, showing unexpected flashes of brilliance at times, and again making a very poor showing.

The season opened with Carmel at Lebanon just two weeks after the first practice. Carmel later in the season played several strong teams to a standstill, but in this particular game, the Lebanon team had things practically their own way and won by the score of 7 to 0, Schaid scoring the touchdown on the last of a series of end runs which Carmel could not stop. Fumbles at critical times prevented the Lebanon score from rising, but a strong defense held the Carmel gridders at bay.

At Shortridge, a week later, a thrilling game was played, and although Lebanon fought hard, they were simply up against a better team and lost, 15 to 0. The heavy Shortridge backs found the Lebanon line particularly vulnerable and made their gains through it, almost at will. Lebanon was inside the twenty yard line only twice, and both times fumbles prevented a score. Shortridge made their points on two touchdowns, and a safety, and a point after touchdown when a Lebanon man was offside.

The next week-end found Crawfordsville as the opponent, and the Lebanon gridiron a sea of mud and water nearly ankle deep after a week of rain. Crawfordsville offered little opposition, and never during the entire game did they have the ball outside their own forty yard line. Lebanon was inside the twenty yard mark eight times during the game, but the backfield could neither stay on their feet in the mud nor hold on to the ball, so although Lebanon was within five yards of a touchdown twice, the game ended in a scoreless tie.

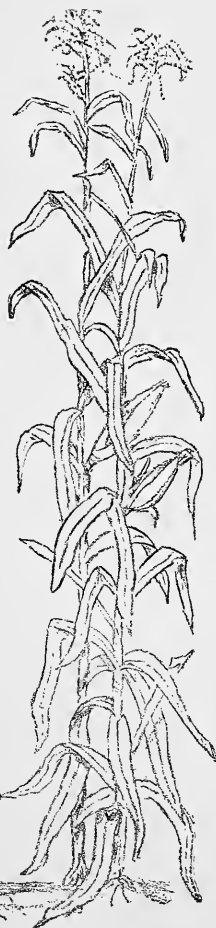

The next game was with Bloomington High School and was played on historic Jordan Field. In this game the Lebanon team played like veterans. The field was dry and the Tigers showed an offensive drive that even the strong Bloomington aggregation could not stop. Lebanon scored two minutes after Bloomington kicked off when Schaid carried the ball back fifty yards to the opponents' twenty yard line, and after three plays failed to gain, a field goal was made from the thirty yard line. The half was replete with long end runs by Bales and Schaid, and ended with the score 20 to 0. Lebanon having scored another field goal, two touchdowns, and having kicked the two points after touchdown. During the second half, Lebanon was satisfied with holding Bloomington, but McDonald intercepted a pass and galloped twenty-five yards through a clear field to a touchdown and the game ended with the score 26 to 0.

Kirklin came to Lebanon for the next game, determined to avenge the overwhelming defeat handed them by the great Lebanon team in 1925. The entire Lebanon team, and especially the line, seemed to be in a slump after the Bloomington game, and although they held the upper hand throughout the first half, no scores were made by either team. It was during this game that the Lebanon players were injured to such an extent that the team was weakened for the rest of the season. Early in the first half McDonald was knocked unconscious, and Glock, who replaced him, was in the game just two plays when he went out with a dislocated jaw. In the second half Stewart received a broken nose which put him out for the season, and Schaid was removed with a badly sprained ankle which kept him on the sidelines for the remainder of the season, with the exception of a few minutes in the last game. Kirklin finally pushed across a touchdown and won the game 7 to 0.

With several regulars on the bench because of injuries, the Lebanon team met a rather unexpected reversal at the hands of the Thorntown eleven, by a score of 21 to 0. The Lebanon gridders seemed to be lost during a great part of the game, and only in spurts were they able to show any of their expected strength.

At times the offensive drives of Glock and Bales could not be stopped, but the punch seemed temporarily lost when a score was in sight. "Abe" Straughn played a great defensive game but the rest of the line cracked in the pinches, and let the Briarville backs away for long gains which led to touchdowns on three different occasions. This, with one point after touchdown and a safety late in the game when Bales' attempted punt was blocked behind the goal line, gave the Thorntown gridders a total of 21, and although Lebanon came close several times they were unable to score.

The big thrills came when Tauer went in at end for Lebanon late in the game and gave a wonderful exhibition of receiving forward passes in a manner which left no doubt as to "Monk's" superior ability in this line.

A week later the strong Manual team from Indianapolis came to Lebanon and were returned victors by a score of 18 to 0. The Capital City team was too heavy for the weakened Lebanon gridders to cope with and only the great defensive work of Bales and Straughn held the score down. Bales made tackle after tackle and Straughn held up his side of the line in fine shape. Lebanon made several first downs during the game but never enough of them in succession to approach the scoring zone.

The season was brought to a close in a great game with Westfield. With Coach Church in the hospital, Pickett took charge of the squad, and injected a spirit into them which inspired one of the best games of the year.

The game started with a series of first downs on gains by Glock and McDonald. Then Westfield started and made the first score on a long end run. In the second quarter Schaid went into the game and scored a touchdown to even the score at six.

Westfield scored again in the third quarter, but in the last period Glock again tied the score when he made a dash around end for a touchdown. Then came the real thrill when, with only a few minutes to go, Lebanon took the ball on their own ten yard line and wide end runs by Schaid and Bales brought it almost to the goal line. These runs amounted to about twenty yards at a time and the last one placed the ball on the one foot line, but the whistle blew before a play could be started, and the game ended, 12 to 12.

Basketball

The Lebanon High School basketball team opened the 1926-27 basketball season auspiciously by winning from Tech of Indianapolis and from Thorntown by comfortable margins. However, at Bainbridge, the Tigers were losers by four points and the speedy Seymour team came to Lebanon and administered the only defeat the locals suffered on the home floor all year.

Seymour had one of the smoothest working machines that has played on the Lebanon floor in several years. New Castle won a rough tilt at New Castle by one point, although Lebanon had more than two good shots to the Trojans' one. Thorntown was defeated for the second time of the year, and then the Tigers took a drubbing on the Frankfort floor by a score of 47 to 34.

The following week-end, however, Frankfort was defeated at Lebanon 28 to 25. This was the first time that a Lebanon basketball team had defeated Frankfort for six years, the "Fighting Five" having won fifteen victories during this stretch. This one victory made the season a success, and was received almost as a state championship would have been by Lebanon fans.

THE 1927 CEDARS

The next game was also an old rivalry contest in which Crawfordsville was defeated 45 to 30. This game evened the contest between the two schools, as each team had won nineteen games from the other in fourteen years competition. Later in the season, however, L. H. S. was again victorious over Crawfordsville and gained the series edge. Peru was beaten by ten points after the first Crawfordsville game, and Shortridge was defeated at Indianapolis.

The New Castle Trojans came to Lebanon and the Tigers avenged the 25 to 24 defeat earlier in the season by trouncing them 42 to 30, in one of the fastest and best played games of the season.

A week-end trip to Richmond and Rushville resulted in an even break, Richmond showing unexpected form to defeat the Lebanon team which played far below normal. Rushville piled up an early lead, but L. H. S. rallied late in the game and pulled out a fine victory.

Tech of Indianapolis was met at Indianapolis in a return tilt, and Lebanon was completely off, while Tech played one of its best games of the year and won, 52 to 34. A week later Lebanon took a complete reversal of form and played its best game of the season against Bloomington and won, 42 to 22. Bloomington, regarded as one of the best teams in the state, was unable to cope with the Tigers.

Schaid

Stewart

Bales

The next night, however, Lebanon was off again and Jeff of Lafayette won a well deserved victory in the dedicatory game for their new armory. Then came the aforementioned "rubber" game with Crawfordsville, which was won by a rally late in the game.

The grand finale for the season came when Alexandria was defeated on the Lebanon floor by a score of 55 to 28. Lebanon played one of the best offensive games of the year and brought to a fitting close the 1926-27 season and the high school careers of Jay Stewart, Lloyd McDonald, Pete Schaid, Doc Smith and Tom Cory.

In the tournament a week later Lebanon met and defeated Thorntown rather easily for the third time this season, but lost in the second round to the speedy Jamestown quintet in a rough but exciting encounter.

The official opening of the Northern Indiana High School Basketball Conference will take place in the 1927-28 season. The Conference is composed of the following schools: Anderson, Frankfort, Kokomo, Lebanon, Logansport, Muncie, New Castle, Richmond, Rochester and Tech of Indianapolis.

Worrell

Padgett

Glock

Cory

The Conference will be conducted much as the Western Conference is among the several universities of the Middle West.

By being a member of the Conference Lebanon has been enabled to compile the best schedule since the last championship year. The following is the schedule at the present time, but it is possible that one or two more games may be carded before the end of the year.

- *Nov. 23—Logansport—Here.
- Dec. 2—Thorntown—There.

Second Team

The second team represented Lebanon High School in a number of regularly scheduled games this year, and since some of the players taking part in these games will no doubt don varsity uniforms next year, it is only proper that we should observe some of the scrubs, who provide opposition for the varsity in regular practice. The scrubs were off to a slow start and lost their first few games. Frankfort seconds were victorious in two encounters with the Cubs, but a victory over Shortridge seconds started things moving in the right direction and the last of the season was a victory march for the Seconds, who scored victories over Perry Central, Zionsville Seconds, New Ross and were barely nosed out by the speedy Crawfordsville reserves.

Little Chet Stewart played the most consistent ball for the seconds, but Dick Voorhis, Proffitt, Peterman, Watson, Sheets, Smith, English, McMains and Cook did some fine work, and will be out after varsity positions next year.

Boys' Inter Class Champions

Back Row—D. Riddle, J. Miller, H. Dean, R. Duff.

Second Row—W. Hysong, J. Byerly, R. White, H. Adairs, P. George, Manager.

The Senior Boys' Basketball team won the Inter Class series of games this year and were awarded numerals for their record. This team had a clean slate of victories over all other class teams, falling only before the unbeaten faculty team.

Girls' Inter Class Champions

Each of the four upper classes of L. H. S. organized class teams early this year and began regular practices. The Senior Girls' team outclassed all other teams in gaining points, and graduates with the honor of having never been defeated.

Front Row—B. Reed, L. Higgins, M. Sweeney, M. Scott.

Second Row—L. McKinley, R. Park, M. Brown.

Back Row—K. Thompson.

"L" Club

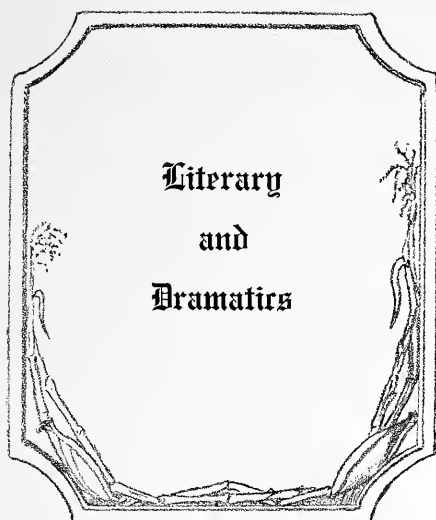

The "L" Club is an organization of boys who have won their "L's" in some branch of athletics. They elect their president each year and hold meetings to discuss matters that arise in athletics. Only men who are members of this club can vote to elect the captains of the different sports teams.

Track Team

The organization of a track team was delayed this spring by cool weather and it was impossible to get a picture before the publication of the Cedars. The following men reported for track and participated in the three scheduled meets which preceded the Sectional at Marion: P. Tauer, E. Bales, E. Schaid, W. J. Stewart, C. Stewart, R. Sterling, E. Cook, V. Shipley, L. Peterson, R. Smith, F. Smith, W. Rainey, G. Padgett, W. Cunningham, R. Duff, J. White, H. English and L. Shultz.

"When Bullets Fail"

It was noonday in the quiet little village of Topaz, which nestled snugly at the foot of the towering Morton's Peak, so named because Wilbur Morton was the first and only man to climb to the top. At the little village church, a crowd was already gathering to witness the marriage of the young man who had conquered the forbidding peak, to Constance Morgan, the most beautiful girl of Topaz. Her father and mother were both dead, and their simple tombstones stood in one corner of the little graveyard, which lay directly at the foot of the perpendicular cliff which young Morton had climbed. It was so situated that, should anyone fall from the top of the cliff, which was not at all likely since no one could get up there, he would land in the graveyard, literally speaking, too. But to return to our story. There was only one man in all Topaz who did not go to the wedding, a simple ceremony performed by the aged minister. That young man had been a rival of Wilbur Morton for the hand of Constance Morgan. "Scar-Face" Simms, the people of Topaz called him, because he had once fallen from his horse, cutting a gash in his face which left a terrible scar. He was known to be malignant and the kind which will stoop ever so low if he could wreak revenge on anyone he had no particular liking for. And he certainly had no particular liking for Wilbur Morton. A lifelong hatred for Wilbur Morton was born in his heart that day, which was to cause him to lose his life.

That night after supper, as Wilbur came out on the porch to smoke a pipe before the "chivaree," which the young couple were sure to get, a man suddenly appeared out of the darkness. It was "Scar-Face."

"Morton, I'll repay you for this." And he was gone as quickly and suddenly as he had come. Wilbur was worried, for he knew "Scar-Face" Simm's reputation.

But he was not given long to ponder, for with a beating of drums, tin pans, and anything else that would make a noise, the villagers came down the road in a mob, with the necessary rail and "face black" to "chivaree" the newly married couple.

Eight years had passed and in the front yard of a neat little bungalow in Topaz, a little boy of seven years was playing. A huge Airdale dog, lean and lank, as if he had had nothing to eat for some time, stopped in front of the house and regarded the little boy wistfully.

"Come here, doggie. Are you hungry? I'll get you something to eat." And with that, young Bobby Morton ran into the house and presently reappeared with a huge piece of meat, which he threw to the dog. After he had finished his meat, the homeless dog at once began to adopt the Morton family as his home.

When Wilbur Morton came home, he found his son playing with a strange dog, and having so much fun that he did not notice his father.

"Son, where did you get that dog?"

"Oh, Daddy, he's the nicest playmate! He just came here from nowhere. Can't I have him? Please, daddy."

"Well, if you want a dog, get a good one. That is just a cur. I'll bring you one from my kennels."

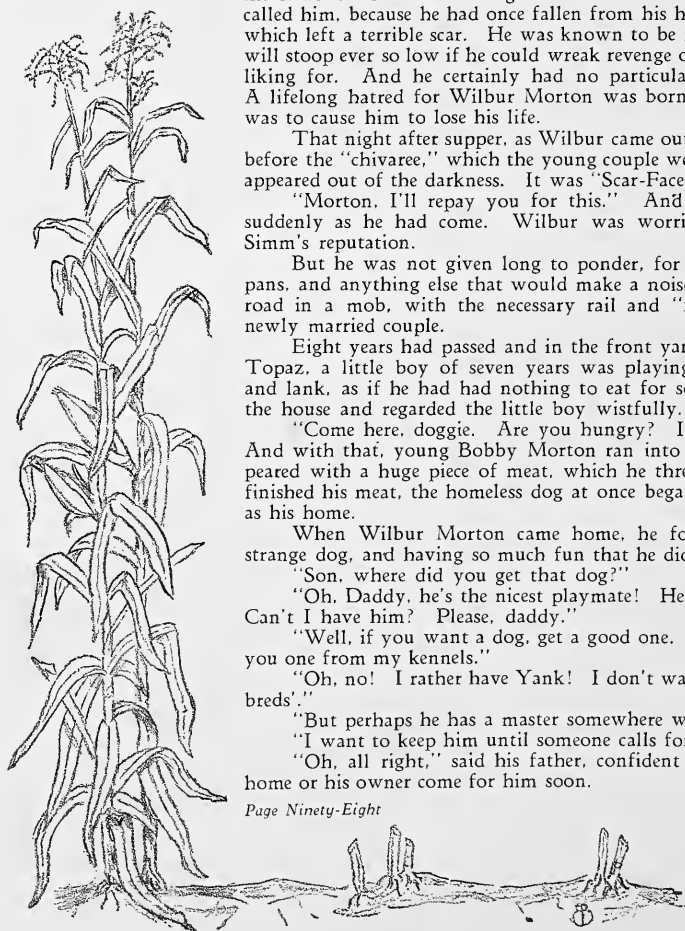

"Oh, no! I rather have Yank! I don't want any of your old 'thorough-breeds'."

"But perhaps he has a master somewhere who will want him."

"I want to keep him until someone calls for him. May I, Daddy?"

"Oh, all right," said his father, confident that the dog would either go home or his owner come for him soon.

THE 1927 CEDARS

But days went by and no owner came, nor did the dog show any inclination to leave. At last Bobby's father, a lover of "thoroughbreds," decided to "lose" Yank and get his son a better dog. One night, while Bobby was asleep, Mr. Morton took the dog into his automobile and took him for a nice long ride. But next morning Yank was on the doorstep, a little tired, it is true, but quite ready for a romp with Bobby when that young gentleman came out. That night, Mr. Morton tried again, taking Yank about twice as far as the night before. But by noon the next day, Yank came limping home, and after a nap, began romping with his young master. Wilbur gave it up then, and next day Yank remained at "home."

That afternoon a car drove up in front of the house and a man called to the boy to ask him if he would like some candy. When Bobby stretched out his hand to take the candy, he was suddenly seized and drawn into the car. A hand was placed over the child's mouth and Bobby was even more scared at the wicked face of his captor than he was at the thought of being carried off in a strange car. He noticed that his captor had a long, ugly scar across his face. Yank witnessed the scene with frank disapproval, and when the car started, he ran after it and succeeded in getting on the runningboard without being noticed by the driver.

That evening when Bobby's father came home from work, he found his wife in a frantic state. His child had been kidnaped! A neighbor had seen the boy drawn into the car and also Yank following his young master.

"If only Yank could help!" thought Wilbur. They searched futilely all night, and next morning a letter came to Mr. Wilbur Morton.

"The kidnapers are demanding their price!" he said. "I'll pay it, if only I can get Bobby back again."

But this is what the letter said:

WILBUR MORTON:

It is not for money that I took your child, but for revenge. I have found the secret pass to the top of your peak. If you will go to the graveyard this afternoon, the body of your boy will be there ready to bury. No ambulance will be needed.

"SCAR-FACE."

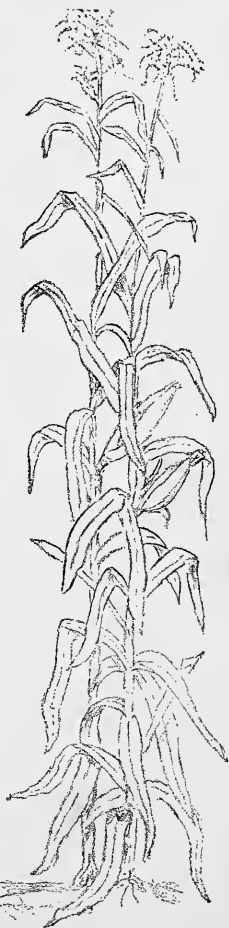

For a moment after reading that fatal message, Wilbur stood stricken dumb. Then he cried out in his agony:

"My God! Scar-Face wouldn't deliberately throw my boy over that cliff! He couldn't be so brutal as that!"

And yet he knew Scar-Face too well to doubt for a moment what he had said in that letter. At last Scar-Face was going to take his revenge that he had promised. After a few minutes, Wilbur suddenly awakened to the fact that perhaps he could beat Scar-Face to the top of the cliff. The thought had not occurred to him in his agony, but now he fairly flew out to his car, snatching his revolver from the table as he went. Constance was in a state of nervous prostration, begging Wilbur to do something, to bring back her boy.

As Morgan ran to his car, he was met by Yank, who looked all tired and worn out, yet, as if he understood, he barked and started off on a short-cut to the mountain. Seeing that Wilbur was not following, he turned and came back and started again.

"All right, old fellow. Maybe you know where he is." With that Wilbur abandoned his car and followed the dog, who started at once in the direction of Morton's Peak. The frantic father followed him on a run, and it was not long before they were ascending the mountain which Wilbur had climbed many years before. About half-way up, the rocks seemed impassable, a solid, perpendicular wall which seemed to have no opening. But neither man nor dog faltered. Going to a small crack between the rocks which was half concealed behind a projecting boulder, they worked their way through a cave-like hole in the rocks until they came out upon a small rock ledge from which they climbed up a natural staircase to firm footing once more. The difficult place had been passed and the way lay open before them. As they rounded a boulder, they saw, just above them, a man dragging a child along. The child was screaming and tugging back. Yank bristled and ran ahead. Morton stopped and drew his pistol. Another moment and Scar-Face would never have taken another step, but just then, as the villain whirled about to drag the child up over a rock, he saw the man and dog. His quick eye took in the rising automatic in a flash. With a quick jerk, he threw the boy on his back between him and his enemy, rendering it impossible for Morton to shoot without danger of hitting the child. He now began to climb on a run, taking care to keep Bobby between himself and the gun. Morton groaned, knowing that he could not possibly overtake Scar-Face before he reached the top. Aiming low at the fleeing man's legs, Morton fired, hoping to bring Scar-Face down, but to no avail. Again and again he fired, crying out after each shot that missed. He emptied the automatic without effect, and now Scar-Face had reached the top. Fifty yards and he would be at the edge of the cliff above the graveyard. Morton cried out for mercy and Scar-Face looked down, a malignant sneer on his ugly face.

But he had overlooked something. Even as he paused to gather himself for the throw, a brown streak shot toward him and leaped upon him, knocking him down. With a cry, Scar-Face tried to ward off those gleaming fangs which were tearing at his throat. Yank had been suddenly transformed from a playful, friendly dog into a raging demon. Scar-Face staggered to his feet on the very verge of the cliff. As Yank launched his sixty-three pounds at him, Scar-Face was knocked forcibly backwards over the precipice. With a terrible cry, he went to the fate that he had intended for Bobby Morton.

Yank, recovering himself just in time to keep from sharing the man's fate, quickly ran to Bobby and began caressing him with his tongue. With tears streaming down his cheeks, Wilbur ran forward and took Yank's great head between his hands.

"Yank, old boy, you've got a home now." Without another word, he lifted Bobby on his back and started to descend the way he had come, his heart too full of emotion to speak.

When he arrived at the first house where there was a telephone, Wilbur called his wife.

"Bobby's all right," he cried. "Yank saved him."

"Let me hear Bobby's voice," insisted his overjoyed wife.

"I'm all right, mother," said Bobby. "And so's Yank. If you don't believe it I'll let him bark for you."

Alumni

Lebanon High School has graduated 1,478 previous to the present class. Classes have been graduated each year from 1876 up to the present except the years 1878, 1882, 1883, 1884 and 1885.

The smallest class graduated was one in 1876, the largest one hundred and two in 1926.

The graduates of the high school at present are following seventy-two different vocations.

Graduates now make their homes in thirty-four different states of the union and three foreign countries.

Seven hundred and eighty-two or about one-half of the total number of graduates still reside in Boone County.

One hundred and forty-one make their homes in Indianapolis and one hundred and thirty-six reside in other parts of Indiana.

Forty live in Illinois, twenty-four in California, twenty-four in Ohio, seventeen in Florida and fifteen in New York.

Cuba, Philippine Islands, Canal Zone, India and Greece each claims one graduate as a resident.

The occupation claiming the greatest number of graduates is housekeeping, three hundred and seventy-seven being so classified. Eighty per cent of all girl graduates before the class of 1924 are now housekeepers.

One hundred and thirty are teachers, coaches or school administrators. This is a larger group than is included in all the other professional occupations.

Fifty-one per cent of the class of 1925 were in college, normal school, or business school the following school year. This is a much higher per centage than most schools will show.

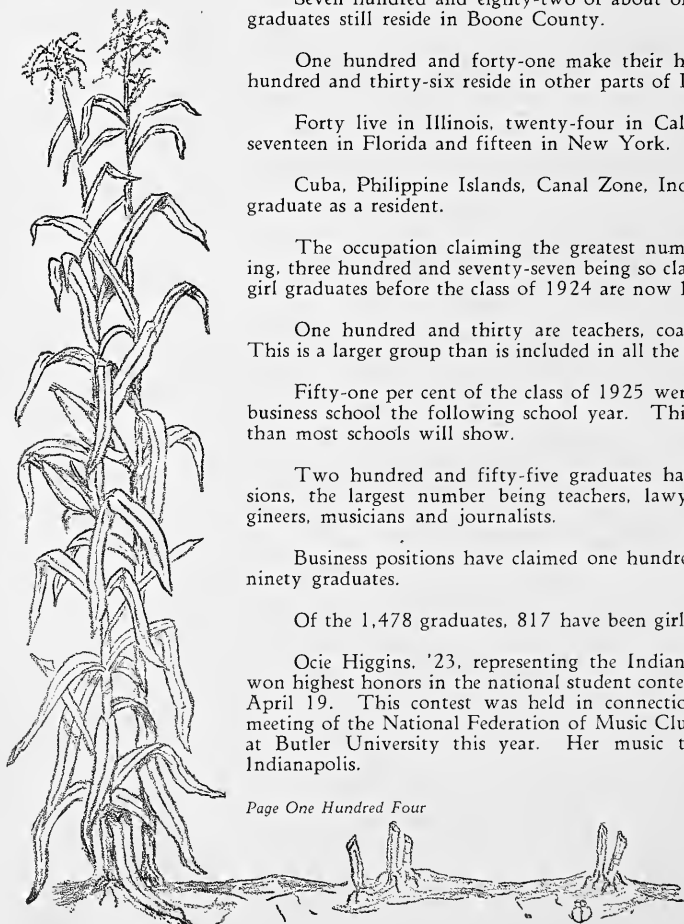

Two hundred and fifty-five graduates have entered the various professions, the largest number being teachers, lawyers, physicians, chemists, engineers, musicians and journalists.

Business positions have claimed one hundred and sixty-four and farming ninety graduates.

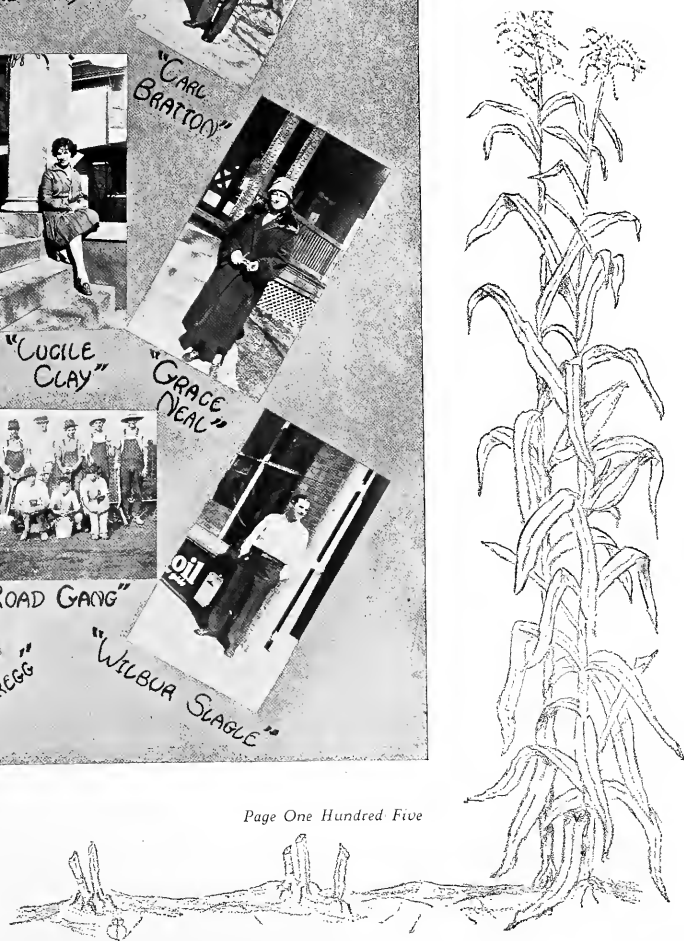

Of the 1,478 graduates, 817 have been girls and 661 boys.

Ocie Higgins, '23, representing the Indiana Federation of Music Clubs, won highest honors in the national student contest for female voices at Chicago, April 19. This contest was held in connection with the fifteenth biennial meeting of the National Federation of Music Clubs. Miss Higgins is a student at Butler University this year. Her music teacher is Glen Freirmood of Indianapolis.

Mack Slusser, '25, was elected as the first Master Councillor of the Boone County Chapter, Order of DeMolay, which was chartered here this year.

Forty-three members of the class of 1926 attended college this year. Oscar Smith is a letter man in three sports at Indiana Central; Morris Crain, Wisconsin; Clarence Lasley, Butler, and James Reed Bohannon, Wabash. All won numerals in some branch of athletics.

Three members of the class of 1926 are teaching this year—Jewell Kincaid, Martha Beaty and Dorothy Finch.

Bennie DeVol, '23, was captain of Wabash College basketball team this year.

Evan Walker, '26, who attends Butler this year, is soloist at the Meridian Street Methodist Church.

Mrs. Cora O. (Pedigo) Bynum, who completed her high school course in 1878, but was unable to participate in a commencement exercise on account of illness in her family, and who therefore was never awarded a diploma, will be a member of the class of 1927, receiving her diploma at the Commencement Exercises. Mrs. Bynum is well-known and well-loved as our city librarian.

Wallace L. Wright, '80, is a teacher at Manila, Philippine Islands.

Frederick Van Nuys, '94, formerly United States District Attorney, and at present a practising attorney in Indianapolis, is the Commencement speaker for the class of 1927.

Merton Keefe, '98, an engineer for the Ulen Construction Company, is located at Athens, Greece.

Roy Adney, '99, was the Democratic nominee from the Ninth Congressional District for Congress last fall.

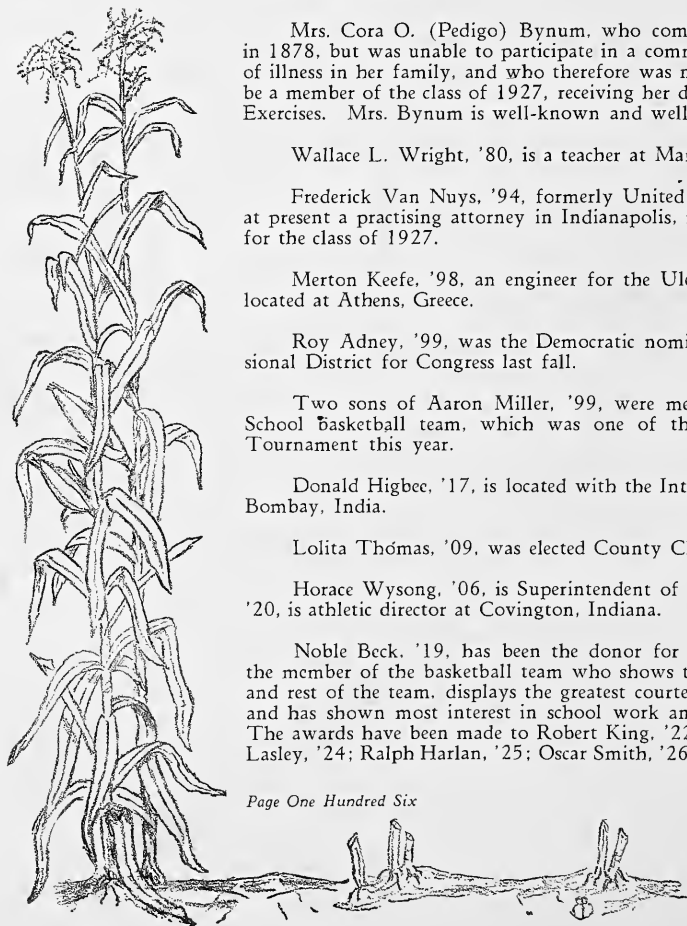

Two sons of Aaron Miller, '99, were members of the Waldron High School basketball team, which was one of the sixteen teams at the State Tournament this year.

Donald Higbee, '17, is located with the International Banking Company, Bombay, India.

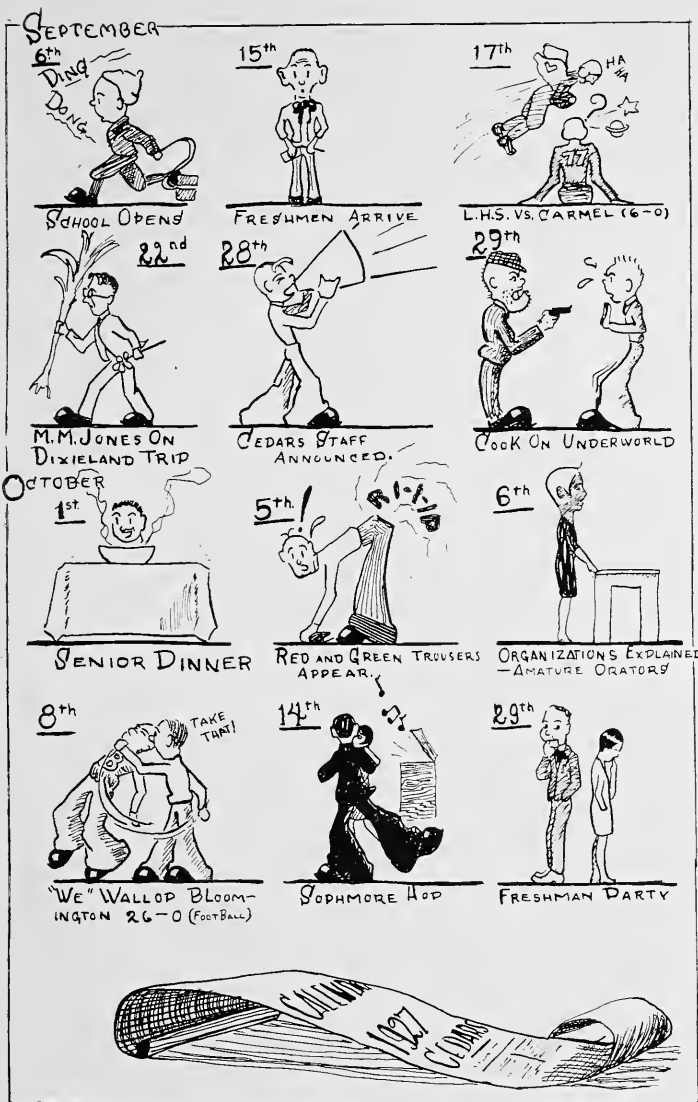

Lolita Thomas, '09, was elected County Clerk at the last fall election.

Horace Wysong, '06, is Superintendent of Schools, and Harold Sanford, '20, is athletic director at Covington, Indiana.

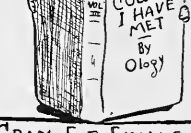

Noble Beck, '19, has been the donor for six years of a trophy cup to the member of the basketball team who shows the best attitude toward coach and rest of the team, displays the greatest courtesy to opponents and officials, and has shown most interest in school work and other high school activities. The awards have been made to Robert King, '22; Bennie DeVol, '23; Arthur Lasley, '24; Ralph Harlan, '25; Oscar Smith, '26, and William J. Stewart, '27.

Jokes

Joke Writer—What would you say if I kissed you?
Jokester's Girl—I make no statement for publication.

Cory—Did you notice the baby face that woman has?
Tauer—No, but I noticed the baby dress she's wearing.

Life is just one damp thing after another, said the clothesline to the under-shirt.

Young Groom—I was just crazy to get married, but I didn't know it till after I was married.

Doris Copeland—Why don't they have insane asylums in Arabia.
Perry—Because there's Nomad people live there, you sap.

A firm chin is helpless without a stiff upper lip.

Prof.—Ever had Economics.
Darnall—No! Just measles and chicken pox.

They picked up Johnny with a mop:
He would jump on cars before they'd stop.

Myers reached in his pocket for a new dollar bill. "I suppose, Jerry," he said to the cabman. "that like a lot of other people nowadays you would rather have clean money."

"That's all right, professor," replied Jerry, "I don't care how you made your money."

Burkhart, the traveller—"My good man, what is the average mortality of this town?"

Hiram—"Oh, about wan apiece, I think, sor."

"A freight elevator isn't a very inspiring sight, is it?"

"No, but it's uplifting.

Tom Beck—I believe a man should give his girl plenty of rope.

Lenox—That's what I did with mine and she skipped.

You say you're perfectly normal?

Yes, sir.

Do you light your cigarette with your right hand?

Yes, sir.

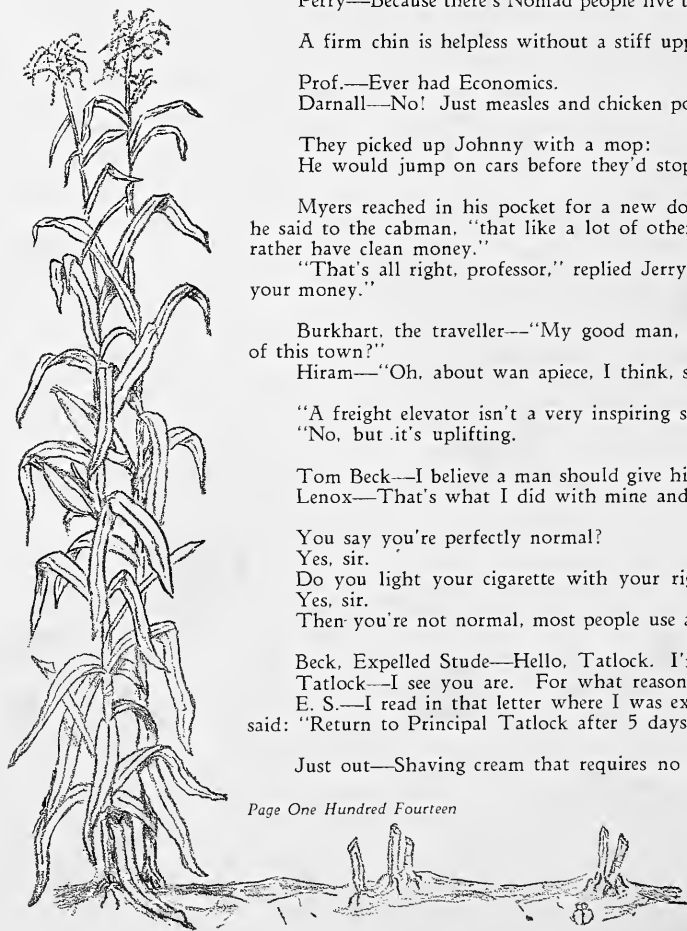

Then you're not normal, most people use a match.

Beck, Expelled Stude—Hello, Tatlock. I'm back.

Tatlock—I see you are. For what reason?

E. S.—I read in that letter where I was expelled, but on the envelope it said: "Return to Principal Tatlock after 5 days."

Just out—Shaving cream that requires no mug.

Why didn't Adler cry out when he sat on the hornet?
Because he felt it beneath him.

Esther Ruth—You'll have to tease mother if you want me to go.
Jay—What will I tease her about, her age?

Swiggett—I don't love Katy any more.

Bowton—Have a quarrel?

Swiggett—No, broke my arm.

'26—Let's take the short cut.

'27—No, we haven't time.

Lewis, the wild one—I don't care what I do.

Mary Belle, the bored one—Neither do I.

Paul Smith—I just saw a fellow who was down and out and he was glad of it.

Fletcher—How's that?

Paul Smith—He just finished his first aeroplane ride.

FABLE

Once upon a time there was a joke about two negroes whose names weren't Rastus and Sambo and they spoke just as good English as you or I do.

Rut B.—Will you let me kiss you?

Esther—Well, I won't let you, but I can't stop you.

A woman doesn't always get the last word. Sometimes she is talking to another woman.

Footprints on the sands of time are not made by sitting down.

Messrs. Rand and McNally on tour—Now where are we? This is a rotten map.

Student—But officer, I'm a student.

Officer—Ignorance is no excuse.

Annie—Marriage is a fifty-fifty proposition.

Bob—Sure, fifty for a new dress, and fifty for a new hat.

Don't rush, the prize goes to the fellow who thought only children could get into the infantry.

Prof.—Reginald, what is the Latin word for wine.

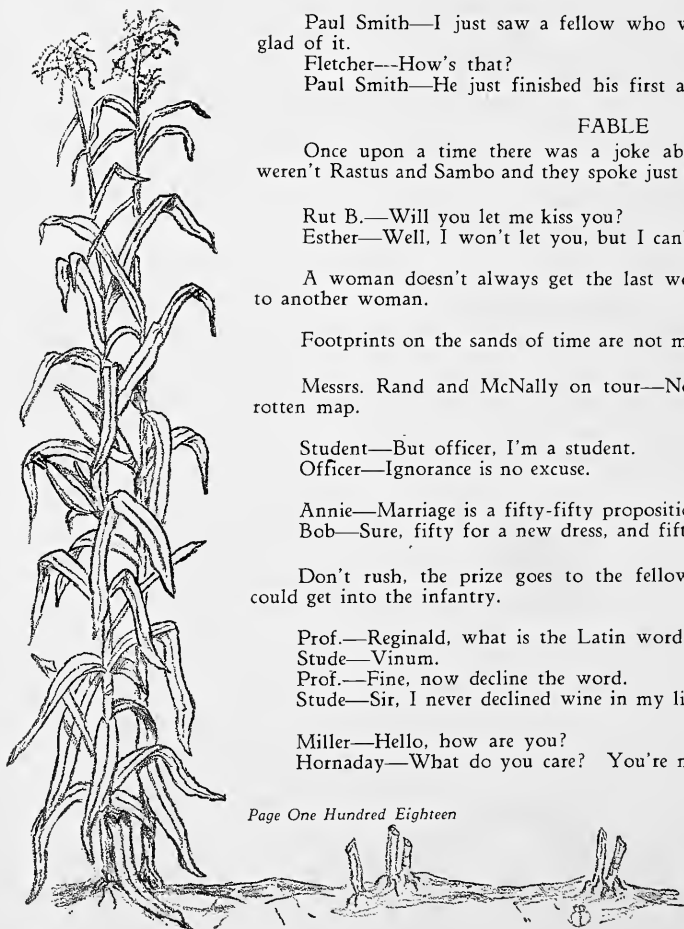

Stude—Vinum.

Prof.—Fine, now decline the word.

Stude—Sir, I never declined wine in my life.

Miller—Hello, how are you?

Hornaday—What do you care? You're not a doctor.

A recent ad describes Will Rogers as the he-man of the stage. If they'll amend that to the "he-he man" we'll accept it.

Dean—I say, Howard, will you drive me all around town?
Adair—Yes, my good man, if I can find a harness to fit you.

Evelyn—I've heard that the expression on a girl's face shows how her partner dances.

Hysong—Quit your frowning, will you?

Margaret—I lost twenty pounds while I was in England.
Orin—How much is that in our money?

Summer hotels, and some aren't.

Harold Powell—Why is the milk so blue?
Frank Hiland—Because the cows are discontented.

Fulwider—I've got a slick job with the electric company.
Lewis—What doin'?

Judy—I go around with the boy who reads the meters and oil 'em so they'll run faster.

Love beats its tattoo on every lover's pocketbook.

Cora Belle—I just got back from the beauty shop. I was there three hours.

Cory—Too bad you didn't get waited on.

It is a short road that has no advertising signs.

"What!" roared the warden. "Convict No. 192876325 called me 'The Prisoner's Wrong.' Put him on bread and water."

"But, sir, he's already on bread and water."

"Well, keep him that way and give him a cook book to read."

Late to bed, early to rise, makes a fan radiowise.

"Hey!"

"What?"

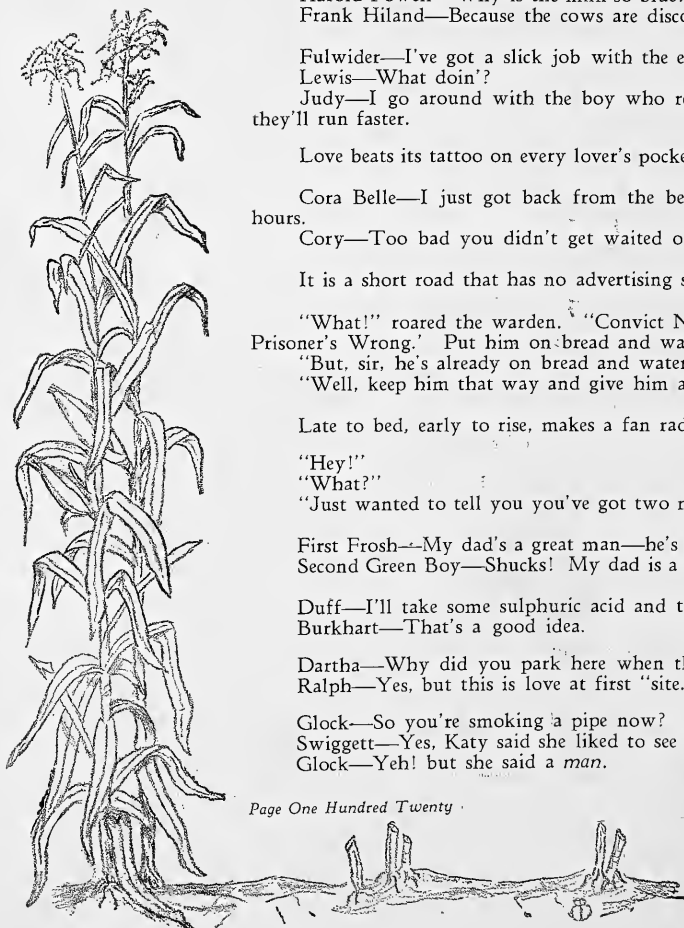

"Just wanted to tell you you've got two more hours to sleep."

First Frosh—My dad's a great man—he's trustee at a university.
Second Green Boy—Shucks! My dad is a trusty at the state penitentiary.

Duff—I'll take some sulphuric acid and then I'll take some chloroform.
Burkhart—That's a good idea.

Dartha—Why did you park here when there are so many other places?
Ralph—Yes, but this is love at first "site."

Glock—So you're smoking a pipe now?
Swiggett—Yes, Katy said she liked to see a man smoke a pipe.
Glock—Yeh! but she said a man.

A man who graduates from college is either a success or a refined bum.

Miss Bell—Where is Berlin?

Dick Adney—In New York writing a new song hit.

Cassady—Hear about the Scotchman who just went insane?

Stewart—No, what's the matter?

Cassady—Bought a score card for a football game and neither team scored.

Plott—Ikey, can you give me a quarter so I can get to where my girl is?

Rogers—Sure, where is your girl?

Plott—At the movies.

A high school is a human hothouse specializing in the sheltered rearing of persons who would be nearly normal if left alone.

Ascum—How is that new patent medicine of yours selling?

Takem—We haven't begun to manufacture it yet. We're busy getting up the testimonials from prominent men who have been cured by it.

If Paul Revere were to make his famous ride today he would probably encounter several speed cops, detour signs, and prohibition officers en route.

Young husband—Honey, I'm afraid that we can't pay for the gas this month.

Practical wife—Well, don't let it leak out.

FELLOW SYMPATHY

A toil weary traveler once stopped at my door,

His garments were tattered and torn.

A roof for the night and a bite from my store,

He begged in a manner forlorn.

"Pray enter," said I, "to my humble abode,

Here's food and here's drink and here's fire,

Here's water to cleanse from the dust of the road,

A bed when you wish to retire."

I held him by hand, while I titled him "friend,"

And laid up his hat on the shelf.

"Such aid as I have," said I, "I extend—

I've toured in a Lizzie myself."

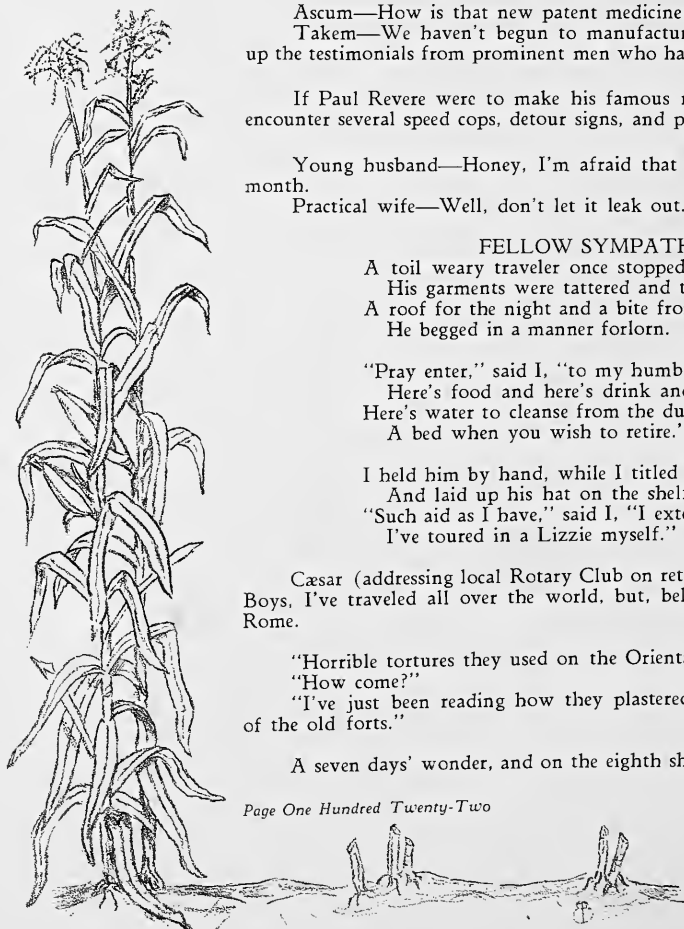

Cæsar (addressing local Rotary Club on return from tour of conquest)—
Boys, I've traveled all over the world, but, believe me, there's no place like Rome.

"Horrible tortures they used on the Orientals, weren't they?"

"How come?"

"I've just been reading how they plastered up the Chinks in the walls of the old forts."

A seven days' wonder, and on the eighth she made up her mind..

Are You a Crazy Driver?

Remember This—When the traffic sign indicates "GO" You have the right of way—But IF YOU TURN you lose your right. Bring your car under control and watch out for pedestrians.

Myrtle Brown—There's a package of fish here, Ma'm, marked C. O. D.
Lucille McKinley—Send it right back. I never learned how to fix cod.

MEN WHO ARE MAKING GOOD!

Little Chet Stewart, who, although only twelve months of age, has swallowed thirteen safety blades, four flashlight batteries, two light globes and a spark plug. Scientists state that he will be a regular cut-up, will be a bright young man, and will be able to eat his wife's cooking.

Postmaster—What's that peculiar odor around here?

Clerk—Probably the dead letters, sir.

A man who was slightly deaf walked into a drug store and spent a considerable time poring over the stationery counter. He finally selected a fancy writing tablet and asked what the price was.

"Thirty-five cents, mister."

"Five cents?"

"No!" shouted the druggist. "I said thirty-five cents."

"Yeh, that's what I thought you said," replied the customer, as he laid his nickel on the counter and walked out.

"Well, go on," shouted the druggist, "I made three cents off of you anyway."

Bill Spray (on Sunday morning)—"Give me change for a dime, please."

Paul Smith—"Sure, and I hope you enjoy the sermon."

Mrs. Martin (to Lois's music master)—"Do you think that Lois will ever be able to do anything with her voice?"

Music Master—"Well, madam, it might come in useful in case of fire."

Man (to young clerk behind the counter)—"Are you the head of this business?"

James Lewis (who is the grocer's son)—"No, I'm only the heir of the head."

STAND BACK

The street was thronged with thousands of hurrying pedestrians. Suddenly a girl's cry rose shrilly above the noise of the passing throngs. "Give me air!" she shrieked. The crowds gasped and stood aside—and Dartha McRoberts triumphantly drove her car, with one flat tire, into the filling station.

Motorcycle Cop—I just stopped you to get your number.

Ginny Davis—You state men sure work fast. I just gave it to a chap down the road about twenty miles, but in case he didn't tell you, it's 123R.

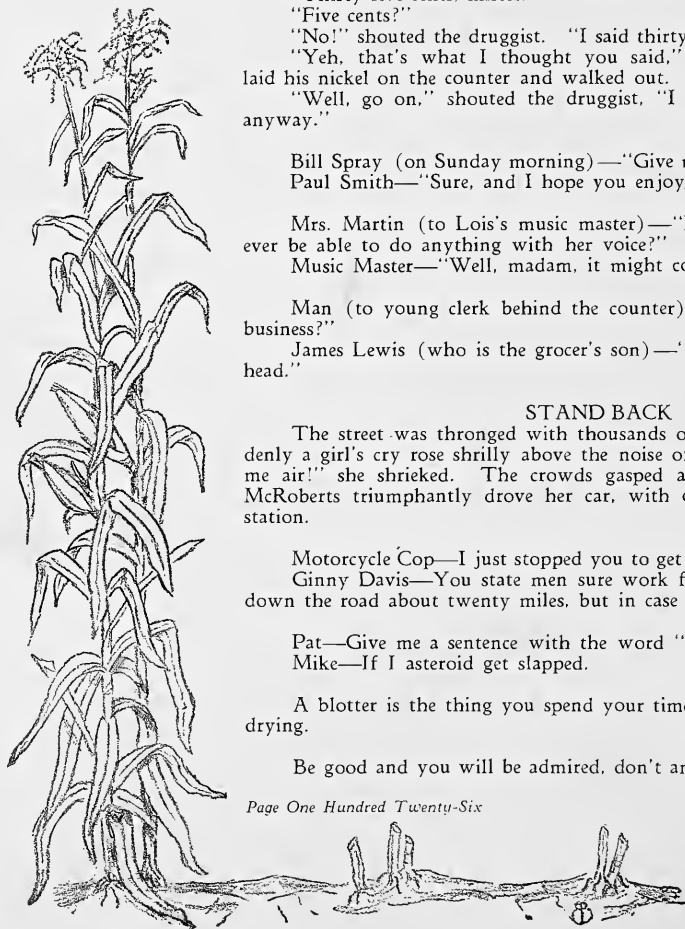

Pat—Give me a sentence with the word "Asteroid."

Mike—If I asteroid get slapped.

A blotter is the thing you spend your time looking for while the ink is drying.

Lives of great men all remind us we could make our lives sublime, if we had the aspirations, brains enough, and lots of time.

Inebriate (getting into taxi)—"Home, James!"
 Taxi Driver—"What d'ye mean, 'Home, James?' This is a public taxi."
 Inebriate—"Oh, very well, Home, Jesse James!"

THEN THE TROUBLE BEGAN

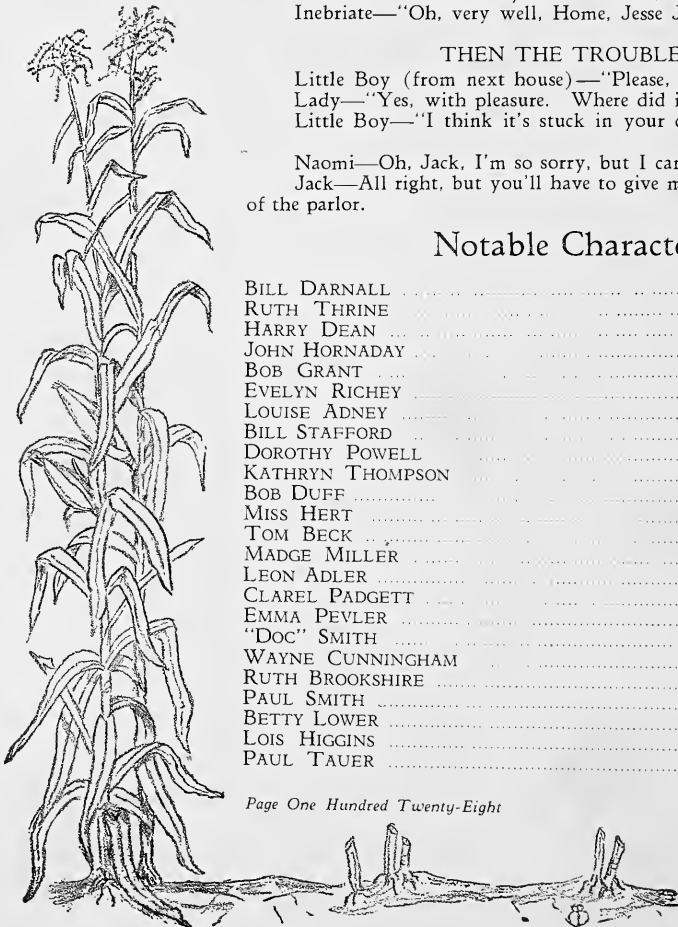

Little Boy (from next house)—"Please, may I have my arrow?"
 Lady—"Yes, with pleasure. Where did it fall?"
 Little Boy—"I think it's stuck in your cat!"

Naomi—Oh, Jack, I'm so sorry, but I can only be a sister to you.
 Jack—All right, but you'll have to give me a quarter a night to keep out of the parlor.
